The creed is not an official government document, but it was created as a gift to the nation by the people of Baltimore, Maryland. (See Links page on www.americanheritage.org for additional resources on the American's Creed.)

Students will read, compare, and explain their creed to other class members. Ask students to compare their creed to the version by William Tyler Page.

Closure

Students can enter into a discussion about the creed and identify an order of importance for the ideas and principles expressed in it.

The American's Creed

In 1916, when half the world was at war, there were many in America who believed that citizens should think more about their blessings, privileges, and obligations as Americans. By 1917, magazines and newspapers from coast to coast were announcing a contest for the writing of the best national creed, a “brief summary of American political faith . . . founded upon the fundamentals of American history and tradition.”

In March, the city of Baltimore offered the prize of $1,000 for the winning creed. Every state in the Union responded. In all, 3,000 entries were submitted. Judges chose a 100 word creed by William Tyler Page compiled from phrases found in American documents and in the words of American patriots.

The American's Creed

by William Tyler Page, 1918

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic, a sovereign nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.
